

THE REVOLUTION OF A CONTEMPORARY FAVORITE.

Much more than an evolutionary remake, the 2006 Mountaineer sets new benchmarks for the midsize sport utility vehicle. A complete rethink of the SUV category, it brings a new level of sophistication to vehicle design and engineering.

THE 2006 MERCURY MOUNTAINEER.

With a full complement of advanced driving systems, the redesigned 2006 Mountaineer performs well at work and play. With fresh contemporary styling and a wealth of premium features, it takes the midsize sport utility vehicle to an exciting place.

MORE OF THIS AND MORE OF THAT.

Mountaineer may well be the world's most adaptable form of personal transportation. With second- and available third-row bench seats, it can accommodate up to seven. Fold those seats and you'll have enough room for that big load — a full 83.7 cu. ft. With available second-row buckets, up to six can travel together. Ask for the third-row seat delete option on Luxury or Premier, and you'll come away with 45.1 cu. ft. of cargo space behind the second row. Yet for all its utility, this is a very inviting passenger cabin, with first- and second-row seats trimmed in available two-tone leather, and satin-aluminum accents throughout. Striking, by any measure.

SOPHISTICATED STRATEGIES FOR CONFIDENT TRAVEL.

Mountaineer was engineered with driving ease and vehicle handling as ultimate goals. For example, Mountaineer's available new 4.6-liter V-8 and six-speed automatic transmission generate a smooth flow of expansive power. AdvanceTrac® with Roll Stability Control collects data from a variety of sensors and takes corrective measures to help reduce the chance of rollover if an unstable situation should arise.* Inside, the Intelligent Safety System™ uses an advanced crash-sensing computer to interpret data from a multitude of sources, and determines which restraint system or combination of systems will provide the appropriate protection for each front-seat occupant. Standard front-seat-mounted side airbags and available first- and second-row side-curtain airbags further contribute to driving peace of mind.

*Remember that even advanced technology cannot overcome the laws of physics. It's always possible to lose control of a vehicle due to inappropriate driver input for the conditions.

Always wear your safety belt and secure children in the rear seat.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT.

Mountaineer's available power-adjustable brake and accelerator pedals can accommodate different drivers. Two-position memory is available on the Luxury and Premier models.

AT THE TOUCH OF A BUTTON.

Mountaineer's new available power-folding 50/50 split third-row seat makes switching from people hauler to cargo carrier a simple matter.*
